CONVENTIONAL PALLET RACK

Pallet Rack system is the most common way to store palletised goods. This solution is recommended for storing mixed goods, access to pallets being made through suitably sized corridors according to the handling equipment.

DRIVE-IN RACKING

Is designed to maximize storage space, resulting in a high density of pallets per cubic meter. The pallets are stored in a 2-block system, generally requiring only one operating lane. Drive-in rack storage is the perfect choice for warehouses with of cargo of the same kind.

LIVE STORAGE

Live storage system is especially useful to store the same type of cargo. The pallets are stored on one side of the channel and slide due to the force of gravity on rolling inclined lanes to the picking area. This type of storage requires only two operating lanes – for storage and picking.

MEZZANINE STRUCTURES

The system is designed for storage spaces where the height allow sfor a vertical exploitation thereof, being an optimal method for doubling or even tripling the surface area. Therefore we can create new surfaces at height in warehouses, allowing creation of space for storage, work, offices, or locker rooms in a fast and economical way.
